

Dear Class of 2020:

The Executive MBA program is based on a study team format to enrich learning and promote skill development. For many people this is a highlight of their experience.

It takes more than good intentions and effort to get great results. To fast track your study team development, the “Study Team Success” experience will be an important part of your two-day class orientation. Humanergy, a leadership development firm, has helped launch successful EMBA study teams for the last 18 years.

Since we’ll have limited time at orientation, we are asking you to do some pre-work that will yield a “Study Team Resource Profile.” This profile will be a compilation of important information provided by each of you that you’ll receive at orientation and that we’ll use to accelerate your team development.

This pre-work will be submitted via this SurveyMonkey link -

<https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/MSUEMBA2018>

Allow about 10 minutes to take the survey with a Friday, June 8, 2018 deadline. We will be summarizing these results to use at orientation.

Please take some quality time to reflect on the following four survey questions. Brief, bullet point responses will be perfect.

1. Stakeholders: In addition to you, who are the people primarily interested in and/or impacted throughout your Executive MBA experience?
  -
  -
2. Success: Given these stakeholders, what are the important results to achieve for you to have a truly successful Executive MBA experience?
  -
  -
3. Talents: What are your abilities that will help achieve this success?
  -
  -
4. Challenges: What are your limitations that need to be developed/managed to achieve this success?
  -
  -

We look forward to working with you at the orientation!

David Wheatley, Michelle VanderMeer and Corey Fernandez
Humanergy